My Father was my greatest role model. He was an amazing dad, coach, mentor, soldier, husband and friend, Death Ends A Life Not A Relationship, Damien you taught me everything I know, you made an impact on all of us here today and so many more. Goodbye is not something forever and not the end, it means I'll miss you until we meet again, Goodbye Dad

“ NFL season is finally starting soon again. If anyone met you once they would know how big of a fan you are about football, especially the redskins now called the commanders you would be pissed at the name. We are finally good now after what's been like 30 freaking years 😭😭. We finally have that franchise quarterback we dreamed about all the time about needing in the car going to bling brothers auto spa. I don't know why i'm telling you all this, I know your watching still in the after life 🕊️🕊️. Sports is something you always cherished a lot besides family. Every win the redskins get I think about you, every loss I think about you. Everyday I think about you. I know you can't hear us anymore but I want you to know that I am finally at ease. You always told us growing up if we were to lose either you or my mother the other one would be Stronger for us. you sure was right, My mother is the Strongest woman I know. You always made a lesson out of something an told me not to let anything no matter what hold me down. This made me Stronger.

“ Hey Dad I miss you so much, These pass months i've been reflecting on past memories and life lessons you've taught me. Some days I feel down but I pray to god everyday and he shows me a way of living through so much pain. Im starting to understand how life goes now, Im starting to understand I wont be able to see you anymore but if anything I know you would want me to stop grieving. I learned something this week before turning 19 and its to let go of the past but keep the lessons it taught you. You made me a stronger man, And you never told me that anything was not possible, Thank you for being the father a son needed. God broke our hearts to prove to use he only takes the best - Your Son Bubba

“ Everyday I look for you to come through the front door.And Every night I rub your pillows wishing you were close.That’s when reality sets in that I will never see you again.20years of loving you most folks would think now they are apart.But Baby I place you right here forever in the center of my heart.The kids are coping with it Day by Day.Bubba said you came to him in a dream your funeral Day.In a Maroon suit you ask that we move on.Don’t Cry for me because I’m already gone.As hard as this will be we will respect your wishes just know you are Always loved ❤️and Forever missed 😭Thank God you chose him as your personal Savior.🙏🙏And so did I back in “2006” So there is the guarantee We will met again.Hallelujah Amen til I See you Again ~Love Always your Mooshe~
