“ Hi; I’m Jack Wagner, Herbie’s former employer.
Please accept my belated sympathy . I was doing a search in hopes of talking to Herbie but see that he’s passed.
I’ll just share one story.
Herb started with us when he was 17 as I recall. He worked in the ‘ slag’ crew as a ‘paper setter’ - difficult position as you had to be able to loft a 60# roll of tar paper along a continuous line to imbed in hot asphalt.
Years pass and one of my ‘mountain men’ , Sam Melton , an architectural sheet metal mechanic demanded that Herb become his helper. However, Early Jones , a Mississippi- good old country boy wouldn’t hear of it. I’m in the middle of it and can’t please either one. I convinced Early that he wouldn’t be the boss of the slag crew unless someone saw his potential. So I had to hire two men to placate Early...Years pass and Sam has a heart attack- all the mechanics told me in no certain terms that Herbie should be on his own.
Then a Russian sheet metal genius demanded Herb as his partner.
Bottom line : everybody loved Herbie Sorry , way too long of a story but I think of Herb as a friend and hope this provides solace to the family.
