“ Old Man,

You have taught me more than anyone. You shaped me into the man I've become. Growing up, I wanted to be you...you were strong, outspoken, hardworking, skillful, honest, funny, cool, and prideful. You commanded respect everywhere you went. You mastered the art of sarcasm and perfected your tough exterior, but I always knew I was your “soft-spot”.

You called me your son and I called you my Old Man. You didn't find it necessary to say a lot, but when you spoke everyone listened. You were committed to living life on your own terms. You showed me what is truly important in life. You held me accountable to that and got my attention when I was falling short. I will never forget your wise words. I will not forget the things you taught me. I will always remember the example you set.

As a boy, I needed someone to look up to and make proud. As a man, you guided me in raising my son and I know I've made you proud. You have left me with so much. I'm blessed to have known you. I'm grateful you loved and cared for me. Thank you for all the sacrifices, gifts, trips, lessons, advice, knowledge, and challenges. Thank you for pushing me. Thank you for every moment we shared. Thank you for opening up to me in the last few years. You meant so much to me. The world is a little less special without you. I will continue to carry and honor your legacy and I will make you proud.

*Love you Old Man,
Knuckles*
