

Katina Lakisha Ellerbe-Spriggs

July 15, 1982 - September 5, 2019

Katina Lakisha (Phyre) Ellerbe-Spriggs proceeded to her heavenly home on September 5, 2019 after a valiant battle with illness. Tina was a beautiful person who positively influenced the lives of everyone she met. Her humanitarian spirit and unmatched ability to put those in need above all, was only outshined by her colorful personality. Katina is survived by her husband Chris Spriggs; two sons DaQuon and Chris Jr.; and a host of loved ones. The Family will receive family and friends as follows:

“ Katina you were a rainbow on a cloudy day. The funfetti sprinkles on a cake 😊 You were always the light in a room of gloom. We grew up together and adulthood may have kept us from visits regularly but you were never forgotten. I will cherish the memories, conversation and my fly apron you made for me! It saddens me to know of your passing but I am certain you are at peace and covered by embrace from your Mom in heaven! Love you always Tina! 🥰🥰

“ This is coming from Jordan aka favorite niece! I'll never forget how Katina ALWAYS HAD MY BACK. I could drive my mother insane but she always stuck by my side. My favorite memory with my aunt is pretty personal but it goes to show how much of an amazing spirit she was. I had a scare in high school I was being young and dumb scared about who to go to not wanting to get in trouble or judged. So who do you call when you need someone who you can trust and won't judge you??? KATINA! I called my aunt cried to her about not knowing what to do and instead of scolding me and making me feel shameful she secretly came and got me, took a test, and before the results showed, looked me dead in my eyes and said “we got this niece don't ever be scared as long as you have your auntie”. The test came up negative and we never talked about it again it was a secret she held with No issue because she loved me. Katina was literally that way for everyone she could help! So selfless and accommodating. Auntie I love you and will celebrate your memory as long as I walk this earth. May everyone celebrate the vibrant life you've lived. I love you Phyre!
