“ Eric and I met on an airplane years ago. I was flying to DC for business. Cloud was flying home. He liked to say that he always kept to himself while traveling, rarely speaking to anyone. This time things were different. By the time our flight landed at DCA, a friendship had developed. On my visits to DC I would stay with Eric and his lovely wife. They opened their home to me like they would for a family member. Fortunately, Eric and I often said to each other the following magical words: “I love you, brother.” Frequently, those words aren’t expressed until it’s too late. One last time, from the deepest part of my heart...I love you, Cloud.

Prayers and sympathy for you and your family. I met Eric many years ago. He was truly a friend indeed. He helped me and my husband find the best deal when we wanted to sell our house. We supported his works in Haiti. He was always helping someone. He will surely be missed. R.I.P. my friend. We loved you. May the works you done for others speak for you. 🙏❤️
